

Match:	FC Eindhoven – FC Volendam
Date:	April 29, 20h00 CET
Preview:	It took three months, but Eindhoven finally managed to win again. They defeated Veendam last week, although their display was less sparkling than the 3-1 score might suggest. Neither team had much to play for, and that was pretty much visible. Neither team showed any attacking intentions, except for a short phase right before the break. It was Eindhoven opening the score after a corner kick, which caused a more attractive second half as Veendam had to play more attacking now. It resulted in a deserved equaliser. A red card for Veendam soon after the match leveller brought Eindhoven in a good position again, and with two late goals they took fully advantage from the situation. Eindhoven's football is definitely not very good yet and they're the underdogs for sure, but I'm quite sure they'll try to end this season on home soil in style. Volendam must leave with a result here. They did a good job last week by winning their homegame with Sparta, and therefore they share the important fifth place with Cambuur now. With games against Eindhoven and Veendam left we may say Volendam has some good cards to keep the fifth place, especially now their football is getting somewhat more acceptable. Last week against Sparta they controlled the first half and took a deserved lead, though they were vulnerable in the second half when Sparta played all-or-nothing with 4 strikers. Volendam's goalie kept them in the game by just eating 1 goal, and with counter attack football they decided the game deservedly in their favour (3-1). They're ahead on Go Ahead now, and as Cambuur has the most difficult fixtures remaining Volendam could do some good business with a win here. At level ball Volendam is worth a shot. They simply can't afford to go down here, and a draw really is the bottom-result they must gain. And I don't see too many reasons why they shouldn't; on form they're improving, and Eindhoven is doing terrible for months now. We've some fantastic odds on the visitors, and I simply can't resist putting them on my coupon this week.
	Level of confidence:	Low/medium	Verdict: Volendam (0)
	Minimal playable odds:	2.00		